

We have good news for investors
in the energy sector:
There can be green in going green.

Over the years, PSEG has shown that generating clean energy, such as nuclear power, can be very profitable. We've also been actively championing conservation and the expansion of renewable energy sources, like solar, to reduce carbon emissions. However, for the long term, the nation will need additional capacity for low- and zero-carbon electric generation, such as nuclear. Going green is simply what's right for the environment and our customers and, at the same time, right for our business and shareholders.

PSEG

We make things work for you.